Cafe 36 — The Story Behind the Name

During the Civil War, diaries and letters written by Union soldiers referenced one subject more than any other—coffee.

As one wrote, "Nobody can 'soldier' without coffee." A scarcity for Confederates, coffee effectively fueled the Union Army and thus their success in the war. It was often a last comfort enjoyed before entering a battle, and the first sign of safety upon return. Ohioan and future president William McKinley performed "the greatest coffee run in American history" when he appeared with vats of hot coffee for soldiers during the raging battle of Antietam.

The Union Army recognized the impact of the coffee, issuing each soldier 36 pounds per year.
